

Supporting Families Before Placement Decisions

What This Is

This page explains an awareness option (Alerta Home) that families can explore prior to placement, when independence is still desired but awareness is needed.

Families considering senior housing options often want reassurance before moving forward. A privacy-preserving awareness approach can identify changes in routines, helping families clarify support needs.

Alerta Home is a passive awareness system that detects meaningful changes in daily movement or activities, without cameras, recorders, or wearables.

Who This Is For

- Families considering independent living communities, retirement homes, or residential care homes.
- Families who want to delay placement thoughtfully.
- Families comparing options without pressure.
- Families who want clarity before long-term decisions.

When Families Typically Consider This

Supporting Families Before Placement Decisions

What This Is Not

- Replacement for housing or care.
- Monitoring or supervision.
- Pushing families toward a decision.
- Alerta Home is intended to complement human care, not replace professional judgment or presence.
